1 Abstract

You cannot use an org-mode header here. If you do, it trashes the table of contents for the apa6 document class. That's why Abstract is bolded manually.

As you can see, I write my documents 1 sentence to a line. This is because I keep these documents under version control. A single English sentence is similar to a single line of code. You wouldn't run lines of code together in a production codebase, so don't run sentences together in a VC'ed text document.

Latex and org-mode both interpret a single empty line as a paragraph break, so the fact that your source document is 1 sentence per line will not be visible to anybody other than you.
